History AutoCAD is one of the oldest commercial CAD programs, and the first to incorporate functions for 3D drafting. It has evolved into a multi-faceted product, with a commercial feature set, a strong focus on the cloud, and a large and growing open source user community. AutoCAD has more than 100,000 registered users, and around 5,000 paid subscribers. AutoCAD 2017 AutoCAD 2017, released in December 2016, is AutoCAD's 23rd major release and the last major release planned for the 2010-2018 version cycle. It is compatible with AutoCAD 2016. New features Revit and Parametric design AutoCAD 2017 includes a new feature, 'Revit Design', which uses the software's parametric features to help model and simulate 3D building designs, such as architectural and engineering designs. Revit Design can be used for building and interior design and it is based on the Revit technology that is used by most architectural firms. Revit Design can import a number of other parametric models and 3D formats for parametric building model building and simulation. PartMaker and AutoCAD 360 AutoCAD 2017 adds a new feature called PartMaker, which allows users to create 3D models from existing 2D drawings. PartMaker enables users to specify the location of an object's 3D 'part', and then to rotate and scale that part in 3D space. PartMaker works with the AutoCAD 360 product, which is a free mobile app for iPhone and iPad, which can be used to create a 3D model from 2D or 3D drawings. AutoCAD 360 is based on the CloudSource Technology platform and provides both 2D and 3D capabilities, including the ability to create orthographic and isometric views. Other features AutoCAD 2017 supports floating windows and snapping, and it can automatically update when the project is synchronized to a Microsoft SkyDrive account. It includes an improved ribbon and menu for the 2D drafting features, including an enhanced image annotation feature called 'AIAKS'. It supports the latest printing technologies and can create new printing projects in the Print Management feature. Major New Features of AutoCAD In 2016, Autodesk released major new features for the 2010-2018 version cycle. These features were called 'Power Technology 2.0'. It is with great sadness that I share the news that the legendary performance artist, Mr. John Altoon passed away at the age of 86. Mr. Altoon was a part of the New York community from the 1920's to the 1990's. He was a frequent performer at the Andy Warhol Factory and his ability to change and transform his work quickly and seamlessly over the years helped shape the art world of that time. For years, he performed the beautifully detailed, nautically themed "Cybermonades" piece at the Bowery Hotel and he also lent his voice to the character of "Tapper" on the long-running PBS series, "George and the Dragon." Throughout the decades, he also did live performances at art museums and galleries including the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Guggenheim Museum, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and more. His solo show at the Whitney Museum in 1967, titled "Ecce Homo", has been one of my personal favorites since I first saw it in the early '70s. It was the first show I ever saw by a "Pop Artist" and it was unlike any other piece of work I had ever seen before. I became obsessed with the painting and went to the Whitney Museum every day, hoping to see more of Mr. Altoon's work. I eventually became his student and we kept in touch until his last days. Like most artists, Mr. Altoon never sold his work in galleries or even in people's homes and he only ever performed in public once. His performance of "Ecce Homo" was, however, videotaped and that is how I was able to see that amazing piece of work over and over again. It was on a VHS tape for years until I found an LP version of the video. So if you ever find yourself in New York, you can go see "Ecce Homo" in person. You can see a link to the Whitney Museum in the description below. Mr. Altoon did not need art, he created it. For the past couple of years, I have been working with him in a project called "Paper Dreams". This year I finished the project and will be selling it on the street in Brooklyn. "Paper

Many good looking ones in the Marais are available, but it is too difficult to coordinate them to make use of the specific hot spots we're interested in. Two months ago, we heard about a gem of a building on Rue Bonaparte that could meet our criteria. For those who don't know this street in the Marais, it is where the Convent du Petit Collège, built in 1522, now houses the famous Lycée Héritier de Sevigné. It is a world renowned boarding school for boys. What caught our eye was the fact that it was built by the Seigneur Jean de Gisors, a man who died horribly in a duel with the King of Navarre in 1445. I mention that last detail because we love a haunted house! In the run up to our wedding, we had been looking at so many houses that we started to lose track of what we
